“India is a photographer’s paradise especially in Rajasthan where the saris, skirts and turbans are of such vibrant colors. It was truly a new and exciting experience each and every day. One we will never forget! Our tour guide Sanjay did a wonderful job.”

-Tony and Sheila Duthie

For many, Rajasthan is the very essence of India, with massive forts and impregnable palaces that rise like giant fairy tale sets above dusty sun-scorched plains and shimmering lakes. It is a land of the most colorful people in India, miniature paintings, fairs, forts and palaces of breathtaking charm. You will see and photograph small villages, people, homes, farms, camels, elephants, palaces, forts, exotic bazaars, walled cities, minarets, tombs, mosques, temples with great works of art, and other historic sites.

PRINCELY RAJASTHAN

Live like a prince, dine under crystal chandeliers, recline on chairs inlaid with ivory, and walk on ancient Persian rugs. India's Maharajas and the royalty lived a life of opulence until they lost their titles to democracy. In the early 1900s, there were over 500 independent principalities in India. Many of their royal residences are now 'Heritage Hotels'. As palaces, country homes or castles they range in 3, 4 or 5 star categories. Many of the historic suites in these palace hotels offer opulence once enjoyed by the Maharajas. Historic suite upgrades are available in these and some of the finest Luxury Premier Taj hotels in India: Lake Palace, Udaipur, Rambagh Palace, Jaipur and Umaid Bhawan Palace, Udaipur.
